

Surge pressure, the phenomenon caused by fluid displacement when moving pipe into the wellbore, is a fact of life in every well. The degree of the surge is traditionally not problematic - assuming an adequate margin exists between pore pressure (PP) and fracture gradient (FG).

Read full article.

Adobe Acrobat
Document

